Norman Baker
(HIMSELF)
"Hello, folks"

BRINKLEY seems to be much better off now than at Milford—before the commission put him off the air—he has a wonderful station and going over America better than he ever did out of Kansas—Vinton, Iowa and other editors seem to be greatly annoyed about it—let them roar—BRINKLEY is—you just can't keep a good man down, and he shows more pep, originality, energy and ABILITY than all the editors combined that attack him—SMOKE THAT, some of you editorial copyers, and if you must attack a man—write your own stuff—don't copy.

DENMARK—has the largest number of radio sets in proportion to her population of any country in the world—America has ten and a half million sets, England three and a half, Germany the same, while France follows with two million and a half million in Denmark—it's a quick way to educate the public—but oh what a powerful weapon against the public that it will eventually turn out to be—they now have and are organizing a large society as organization for "education by radio"—it will be in all schools—the teacher will be old man public utility from Wall street teaching economics on the almighty dollar basis—it will be quite a lesson—poor kids of the next generation.

PAYING bills with bread and milk—is going on in Germany—they then feed the food stuff to the unemployed—just can't beat them for close figuring out of a large field—the country allows the amount to be taken off the taxes and the farmers get higher prices that way than selling through brokers—American farmers will all be interested in the single unit plan which I understand the farmers are soon going to start—all should join hands, quit your quarreling with each other—act collectively and WIN.

I HOPE many of you who have secured a copy of that UNUSUAL BOOK—the advertised the other day—"The Strange Death of President Harding"—have enjoyed it as no other book you have ever read—it shows the gang up in great shape—little did AMERICANS EVER DREAM that such corruptions could exist in our good old U. S. A.—if you have not got your copy—get it while the special offer exists—a copy free with each paid subscription to this paper—is there any doubt as to his death after reading that book—such is life.

CORN—farmers all busy now husking it—here's hoping the marketers will not throw another scare into the farmers and say there is too much corn—and overproduction—burn it—throw it away—destroy it—sell it for any price—then when it is all sold—say—WE NOW FIND THERE IS A SHORTAGE OF CORN AND EUROPE NEEDS MILLIONS OF BUSHELS QUICKLY—up goes the price—selling high—THAT WHICH WAS BOUGHT FOR LITTLE—now it's sold for much more.

MEAN while people call crazy today—they build wonderful monuments for tomorrow—and Miss Fortune, the cute little dame, always smiles on those brave ones who meet misfortune bravely—and the sun's rays do not burn until brought to focus—your thoughts so focused will burn.

There can be clean hands out of a puppit—because plow handles and pulleys are made of the same wood—both become sacred if touched with CLEAN HANDS and thought with CLEAN THOUGHTS.

CHINA GENERAL PLANS TO BALK JAPAN ADVANCE

Will Fight to Keep Japanese From Coming North

By EDWARD HUNTER
With the Japanese army on the Nomi river battle front—(INS)—General Ma Chan-Shan, commander of the Heilung-Kiang army confronting the Japanese in this bleak battle zone, today served notice on the Japanese military authorities that he intends to hold Angangchi at all costs and will resist any attempt by the Japanese to advance northward toward Tsitsihar.

(The Chinese delegation to the League of Nations announced yesterday that the Japanese had sent an ultimatum to General Ma, demanding that he retire at once and permit them to occupy Tsitsihar, capital of Heilung-Kiang province, without fighting.)

General Ma is openly defying the Japanese. The concentration of his troops north of Tachang station, a few miles from the Japanese lines, threatens to bring about immediate renewal of hostilities on this front.

For the present the Japanese have been forbidden to cross an imaginary line five miles north of the village of Tachang.

(Hunter's dispatch does not indicate whether the Japanese or Chinese have drawn this imaginary line.)

AL CAPONE MEN DRAW PEN TERM

CHICAGO.—(INS)—Alphonse Capone's underworld syndicate once considered practically immune from law's intervention, staggered today under a fresh flurry of blows dealt it by the federal government.

The trio, John Mattels and Martin Accardo, Al's lieutenants, and Leo Shaffer, a renegade gangster, were each fined $1,500 in addition to the penitentiary sentences. Federal prosecutors said the sentences were the most severe since the advent of the Jones law.

LETTERS POUR INTO HOSPITAL FOR SUFFERER

Child Is Improving Fast Under Care Of Hospital

By KINGSBURY SMITH
WASHINGTON.—(INS)—How a little child's suffering has aroused the entire nation was revealed today by the scores of letters and gifts which poured into Gallinger hospital here from all over the country for Edith Riley, 13-year-old alleged victim of four years' torture at the hands of a cruel step-mother.

Told through the medium of the press all the pitiful details of the child's imprisonment in a dark, foul closet and other heinous tortures inflicted on her, mothers, fathers, young married couples and even children have written sympathetic letters, sent money, gifts and offers of a home.

The emaciated little girl was improving fast under the care of the hospital, but officials decided to defer any thorough mental examination. They declared such an examination would offer more productive results when the child has received the benefits of some weeks of fare and her mind has been given a chance to adjust itself.

Action of the grand jury will not await results of mental tests, however, and was expected today.

From St. Paul, Minn., came a large doll; from Watertown, Conn., came the offer of a home; from New York came a baby carriage and money. From scores of other places came messages of hope and encouragement.

Little Mary Killian of St. Paul, Minn., sent the doll, and said: "I am praying for the return of good health for you. Love and kisses from a little girl friend."

Doris Dawley, of Watertown, offered to share her home with Edith. She wrote:

"My dear little friend: Daddy and mummy have told me all about you and it made me cry. How you must have been heartbroken all the time. I wish you would come and stay with me. Daddy and mummy said you could. We could play together."

A young married couple from Steubenville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Noy, sent Christmas cards. Erna Willma, New York City, sent her own baby carriage. An unsigned letter from a New York father contained two dollars.

A beautiful song-bird, sent by a Washington woman, added its twittering to the joyous atmosphere.

NO ACCIDENTS REPORTED HERE FRIDAY 13TH

Ancient Belief That Today Is Unlucky Is Forgotten

Friday the thirteenth, that jinx of the superstitious, is here once more. To those who believe that evil spirits guide their destinies on this day it is a time when great care must be taken to avoid mishaps—to others it was just another "fish" day.

That small percentage of people who believe that Friday the thirteenth is unlucky, and few of those who do believe it will admit it, probably started the day by throwing salt over their left shoulder, studiously avoided walking under a ladder, refused to handle a mirror for fear it would break and kept away from their employer as much as possible. If they forgot anything they returned to return it, and as much as possible, kept away from all phases of their jobs which had any element of danger.

According to both the police and sheriff's records, not a single serious accident occurred today, although there seemed to be no fewer automobiles on the street than ordinarily and just as many people it would appear that Friday the thirteenth had lost some of its ancient power.

Just why anyone should be more unlucky on Friday the thirteenth than any other day, no one has been able to completely explain. Both Friday and the number 13 have long been considered unlucky but the reason is lost in the history of the ages. Ancient Romans, who are credited with first declaring that seven was a lucky number, are also said to have first discovered that 13 was its opposite. The declaration that Friday brought unfortunate happenings came some time later, but no one seems to know just when.

COAL FREIGHT RATE ATTACKED

Railroad Protesting Against Reduction For Muscatine

Muscatine's freight rate on coal, which has been listed for a reduction in a report of an Interstate Commerce commissioner, was subjected to an attack by railroads involved in the case, according to advices received from Washington, D. C., today.

The new rate for Muscatine from bituminous fields 356 miles away gives at $2.48 a ton for lump coal, and $2.51 for fine coal. Quoting these figures approved by the examiner, the railroads in their brief, showed that this yields them only 6.9 mills per ton mile on the lump coal and 8.4 mills per ton mile on the fine coal.

Rate Further Attacked
This rate is further attacked by the railroads as below the Holmes and Hallows scale, a standard of comparison used in coal freight rate cases. The railroads said the lump rate is only 77 per cent of this standard, and the fine coal rate only 71 per cent of that scale.

The various large commission cities of Iowa are grouped together in the protest of the railroads, who say in their brief "the examiner singles out Davenport for preferential treatment as compared with other Mississippi river cities in Iowa, entirely disrupting the present schedule of freight rates."

"The Yellow Ticket", New Fox Film, Enthralling Melodrama

Film to Open Three Day Run at Uptown Here Saturday

Boasting a brilliant cast of favorites, headed by Elissa Landi, Lionel Barrymore and Laurence Oliver, a tensely gripping and romantic story and some of the most lavish sets that have been flashed upon the screen in many a day, Raoul Walsh's Fox romantic drama, "The Yellow Ticket" will open a three day engagement Saturday at Bostons Uptown theater.

The dramatic plot, which was adapted for the screen from Michael Morton's stage play by Jules Furthman and Guy Bolton, evolves about a young and sensitive Russian girl, who through circumstances beyond her control finds it necessary to match her wits against those of the wicked head of the czar's secret police, with her own romance and the safety of her lover as the stakes of the struggle. In the end she is forced to kill the relentless menace, only to be then faced with graver problems that lead to a most startling denouement.

The role of the girl is enacted by play to her histrionic talents and play to her historic talents and during her emotional scenes she rises to heights of dramatic power seldom seen and heard on the screen. Lionel Barrymore appears as the cruel and scheming police head and as usual Mr. Barrymore gives a performance that is nothing short of superb. Laurence Oliver, who only recently came to the screen from the London and Broadway stage is excellent in the romantic male lead.

Other favorites in the cast who are deserving of much credit are Walter Byron, Rita LaRoy, Sarah Padden, Arnold Korff, Miesha Auer, Edwin Maxwell and Boris Karloff.

"The Yellow Ticket" marks the return of Raoul Walsh to the dramatic media and his direction of it is perfect in every way. He has secured the most from every dramatic situation and at the same time guided his players from overacting their roles in the tense moments of the picture. It ranks with his "The Man Who Came Back," his recent dramatic hit with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

The Iowa Dental plan, which has been in operation in Muscatine schools during the past three years, will be continued during the present school year, it was announced by H. Van Hettings, superintendent of city schools and Miss Margaret Gill, public school nurse. Four rooms were 100 per cent in the dental work and received special certificates of award from the Bureau of Dental Hygiene of the state university, which promotes the dental program.

For September and October of this year, 581 pupils have shown complete dental care. Each child is furnished a card which, when signed by the family dentist after all work has been completed or none found necessary, entitles the pupil to have his name on the dental honor roll.

For a Child's Room
If you are at a loss to know what to use in a child's room for bed spread and child covers then by all means choose calico in one of the quaint patterns that have been made in one New England mill for more than two hundred and fifty years. They come in yellow, blue, pink, red or green backgrounds with tiny characteristic all over patterns. They wash well, wear well and cost a ridiculously small amount.

Citron Yellow
This particular new shade, just between a lime green and a lemon yellow is the choice of those women who know their fashion, and as a further indication of their chic they add a belt of wine red velvet to a brown crepe evening frock and top the costume with a coat of red velvet.

A little serving tray with its own matching stand has a strip of gay striped Basque linen under the glass, a touch that is amusing in keeping with the uses to which the tray is often put. Give one to the girl with her own apartment and she will love it. (Copyright 1931, By Associated Newspapers)

Eat WHOLE GRAIN foods Avoid devitalized foods!

BEWARE of breakfast foods that are merely "fillers"! Most breakfast foods have always been devitalized—stripped of vital elements that Mother Nature stores away in the whole kernel. They leave the body actually famished for balanced nourishment. NOW science has created WHEAT POPS and RICE POPS—the first foods ever "popped" from WHOLE GRAINS! POPS has the supreme flavor, the rich food value of the entire kernel—minerals, proteins, carbohydrates and Nature's gentle laxative—bran—for regular elimination. Put health in your family's cereal bowls—ask for WHEAT POPS or RICE POPS—avoid devitalized cereals.

DARE :: INTERPRETS the MODE

Delicate black lace, with a quality shirred bodice—contrasts with the flame red satin slip over which it's worn. (Sketches in a New York Shop).

But to get back to our dots—isn't it odd how the same dots in different materials look so different and serve such dissimilar purposes? For instance, for sports wear, wide meshed wool stockings are made in dark colors, with a tiny, furry dot at the intersection of the meshes in a lighter color. They're just the smartest things—can't you imagine a brown mesh pair with beige dots with your brown ensemble, or green and chartreuse with your little green golf costume? The cotton lisle mesh hose are for business, street and daytime wear, of moderate sized mesh, with flat, self-colored dots at every intersection, or spaced more widely. And then for evening, the stockings are of the finest wide silk mesh, and the dots in this case are paillettes! And it's a fine and delicate art that knows how to sew on these paillettes so that they'll stay put and be so flat that they won't interfere or catch in the other stocking, isn't it? And a fairly lovely result it is, too.

I may be wool, silk or cotton, but whichever it is, it's the latest thing in new stockings! In new mesh stockings, to be more specific! And you wear them for daytime, for active sports and for evening dances—and they are always dotted!

Goodness, stockings are changing daily, and getting as many new twists and turns as the fussiest and most befuddled Empress Eugenie! And this one that I speak of today—dots—is the latest, or was until I sat me down here to write about them. With changes as rapid as streaks of lightning, one just doesn't dare make a positive statement about the latest fad, now does one?

COLORED lace over a self-colored slip isn't chic any more—the one above is something else again!

THE latest way that alpacas take to prove their swank is to match a collar, as I have illustrated above.

CHAPTER VI

They hadn't believed him when he told about Mr. Martin. Maybe they'd question him again. That's it, they'd bring him out and question him for a while, then send him back to forget what he'd said. But he must not forget one thing; they could burn him in oil if they wanted to, but he mustn't forget one thing. He'd make up a story about where he'd been today, and he'd stick to it. Other things faded—just that a girl should not know, this seemed to be all that counted now. Minutes dragged by. He mustn't forget to keep quiet about where he'd been today. An hour passed. The turnkey came and unlocked his cell. They went back to the captain's office.

"Sit down," said the captain. Then everybody seemed to forget him, except a fifth person who was now in the room, a tall, gray-haired man with some distinguishing characteristics, who came to the other end of the table and looked intently at him.

"No," he said after a long time. "Sure?" asked the captain. "Absolutely," said the man. Pete Maxwell lit a cigarette. Ed slumped in his chair and began the reading of an early edition newspaper. Jake and Jerry just sat. The captain looked over some papers from his desk. From the other end of the table, the gray-haired man stared at Joe—and Joe returned the look.

"Absolutely," said the gray-haired man for a second time. The captain seemingly ignored the remark. "Sport," he began, leaning toward Joe Barry. "Forgot to ask you before. Suppose you give me an accurate description of this John B. Martin?"

Joe Barry licked his lips. "Well, I don't know how accurate I can be. I didn't pay much attention, except that he was about medium height, and had dark hair and eyes."

"Weight?" "He wasn't very heavy."

"And just medium height?" "Yes, sir."

"Not tall, like Detective Maxwell there, or this gentleman?" "No, sir."

The captain leaned back in his chair. "Sport," he said, "suppose you cut the comedy and save us a lot of trouble. This gentleman here, whom we had to disturb out of a night's sleep, happens to have his offices at 60 Wall street. And he's the only John B. Martin in that building."

Joe Barry's lips quivered; he was reaching the point where a nerveburned body refused to give more emphatic signals of his distress. "Well," came tonelessly, "I don't know what we can do about it."

The captain seemed to disregard that, too. "That'll be all, Mr. Martin. Sorry to have disturbed you."

The distinguished man departed. Pete Maxwell pulled up a chair. "Now listen, sport, there isn't any sense in you trying to beat this rap with a lot of clown stuff. You've got too much to explain. All that money in your pockets; that water-soaked suit and those shoes with mud on them."

Joe's tongue licked quickly at dry lips. "I don't know anything about the money. But about those clothes. I had them on day before yesterday and got caught in the rain."

"Where?" "Up by Newburgh, near a little town called Orr's Mills."

Pete Maxwell glanced hastily toward the captain. The three other detectives shuffled into an attitude of attention, their arms on the table.

"Go right ahead," said Pete, then interrupted at almost the first sentence. "What did you go up there for?"

Joe Barry shifted; the first bubbles of a slow hate were beginning to rise. "I'm trying to tell—but you won't listen!"

"We haven't missed a trick. Hop to it."

Joe Barry began his recital again, only to meet with more interruptions, cross-statements between the various men, returns to the beginning of his story. But at last they let him finish. Pete straightened and stretched, pressing his hands wide at the sides of his chest.

"Bridge player, eh sport?" he asked. "No."

As We See It

The Cycle of Monopoly Almost Completed

Yesterday we called attention to the fact that monopoly has invaded the field of distribution. We pointed out that it had already become a dominant factor in finance, public utilities, manufacturing, and mining. The giant corporation is the dominating factor, also, in the field of transportation, despite the fact that the truck and the automobile have become serious competitors. In ocean transportation the super-corporation or combine is even more dominant.

Not only has the giant corporation entered the field of distribution, but it is now rapidly invading the field of agriculture in the form of corporation farming. Corporation farming began more than twenty years ago as the big bonanza farms of the West where the best farm machinery then known was applied on a vast scale to immense grain farms. It was believed then by many that the corporation farm would soon dominate several branches of agriculture. But corporation grain farming met with several reverses. Agriculture is peculiarly suited to family ownership and operation, and it is not easy to uproot the private family from the soil. But the farm corporation has come back and we are now witnessing a second invasion of the soil by organized capital. This time the invasion is much more formidable than before and some of our most prominent economists are now predicting that with the greatly improved machinery of the last twenty years, the better business methods, the general uprooting of farmers and their replacement by tenants, the new ownership of vast and increasing tracts of land by banking, loan and insurance interests and the much more difficult position of the farmer-owner, the corporation farm has come to stay and gain an increasing foothold.

The whole process of mechanizing, trustification and organization of finance, production, transportation, distribution, or merchandising, and agriculture is the most remarkable and significant development of modern times. It has come about because of the invention and increasing use of machinery. Machinery has not only made it practicable, but inevitable that the big financial, industrial and commercial and even agricultural unit would succeed and crowd out the small and less highly equipped unit. In this manner our whole civilization is becoming mechanized and highly organized and closely linked together.

Machinery made mechanization and organization inevitable: overproduction beyond the purchasing power of our underpaid wage-earning and farming population made the trust or monopoly inevitable. The trust was organized to SUPPRESS production and hold it down to the level of the purchasing power of the people. But the trust or monopoly also suppresses or LIMITS consumption in order to make the largest profits possible for the trust owners. Thus we have fallen into the vicious circle of trust suppression of both production and consumption for the sake of trust profits.

Outside of this vicious feature of monopoly, which we somehow must eliminate, the mechanization and organization of our whole financial, industrial and business system is a remarkable and splendid achievement. The big business way is the most economical and best way because it alone is capable of mass production and mass distribution, which alone can supply all the people with an abundance of the good things of life and lift us all to a much higher plane of permanent prosperity.

The whole progress of the world should be directed, not to the destruction of organized big business but toward the democratic utilization of organized big business. We brought out the superiority of the big business method yesterday when we pointed out some of the advantages that big organization in distribution give. Organized distribution can get goods from producer to consumer at far less cost than unorganized distribution. Organization in distribution and even in agriculture is coming just as certainly as the fact that it is the dominating factor now in finance and industry.

We are rapidly advancing toward a great organized system of production and distribution that will be capable of supplying in abundance every legitimate want of every producer in the nation. The bad feature that has grown up with this great and necessary work of organization is private monopoly. Private monopolists are now using our big business system to enrich and aggrandize themselves at the expense of the people.

The problem of the hour is to eliminate these monopolistic features from our big business system, but keep the big business system. The next stage of civilization is democratic big business.

Trust Magnates Are All Alike

A recent newspaper interview of Bernard M. Baruch, financial magnate and prominent Democrat, brings out in a striking manner the fact that a Democratic big business magnate has identically the same economic interests, the same ideas and the same mentality as a Republican big business magnate.

Mr. Baruch favored a tariff commission which "would consider each schedule from the angle of the needs of American industry." This is in violation of the professed Democratic belief in free trade, or tariff for revenue only, and is identical with the Republican view of the tariff.

While Mr. Baruch favored increasing the taxes of the rich in view of the present governmental deficit, he also favored making a great many more poor people pay income taxes.

He favored "certain modifications" of the Sherman anti-trust law, so that the government and the trust magnates can form a partnership in keeping production down to the present poverty level of our underpaid wage earners and farmers. This is exactly what every Republican trust magnate in the country is after. It is a square challenge to every worker in the nation as to whether depressions shall be cured by decreasing production or by increasing consumption—and the Democratic magnate stands exactly where the Republican magnate stands—against the people.

The biggest and bloodiest execution ever ordered was the recent one advised by the Farm Board that every farmer kill every tenth cow. Cows are sometimes called bosses, and our politicians simply can't stand to have so much competition.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

A POOR NAVIGATOR

By Elta Webb

Here mother warned Ila that marriage was like going to sea. It might be bumpy, and at times even unpleasant due to sudden squalls. The ultimate success of the voyage depended in a great measure upon the wife. She also added she was afraid Ila lacked tact and good sense, both of which were absolutely necessary to make a good navigator.

Weeks and weeks went by. Nothing more disturbing happened than the usual little squalls which are pretty apt to occur when two young people, with entirely different temperaments, live together under the same roof. Ila was intensely happy and so was Bob. She was gleefully beginning to assure herself that her mother had been all wrong, when things began to happen.

One evening while they were listening to the radio Bob had been called to the telephone. Ila turned off the radio and listened. Bob's side of the conversation sounded mysterious. When finally he returned to his seat under the shaded lamp, the light was dim.

"Who called Bob?" she asked. "Some one on business," he evaded. It was the first time he had tried to be so evasive. Ila's secret suspicion was that he had been to the office.

The very next morning Bob's mother arrived unannounced. Ila had a suspicion that Bob knew she was coming. Mrs. Forbes, however, offered no explanation for her sudden appearance.

At noon while she was preparing lunch Ila surprised Bob and his mother holding a whispered conversation. They looked confused. They discovered she was watching them. There could be no doubt—they had a secret!

Her suspicions were confirmed that very afternoon. She slipped into the front hall to get the mail and discovered her mother-in-law trying to secure a long envelope in the front of her dress. Ila got near enough to see the letter was addressed to Bob.

"Any mail?" she tried to make her voice sound casual. Mrs. Forbes shook her head. A short time later she dreamed for the street and went out. She did not say where she was going.

He sat down on theavenport and thought and thought. The more she thought about Bob and his mother the surer she became they were conspiring against her. Many little almost forgotten incidents flashed into her mind. They took on a new significance in the light of her suspicion.

Finally she tried to get Bob on the telephone. But the girl at the office said he had gone out. No. He had not said when he would return.

He wept and raged all alone by himself until she brought on a nervous headache. Finally she called her own mother and begged her to come right over. A half-hour later when her mother arrived, breathless from hurrying, Ila tragically poured out all her suspicions. She ended up by consigning both Bob and his mother to the discard.

"Oh, mother!" she wailed. "My happiness is ruined. Take me home with you!"

"Fiddlesticks! I shall not do anything of the sort. I always told you, Ila, you lacked tact and common sense. This proves it. It is very poor time to have a shipwreck when we are all planning a surprise for you."

"Surprise!" Ila stared at her mother.

"Yes! One of the fellows who works in the office with Bob was going to leave town. He wanted to sell his house. It was a great bargain. Bob bought it. He is giving it to you for your anniversary present."

"But what has his mother got to do with it?" Ila demanded. "Nothing, except to leave her own home and come here to help you and Bob move. She is over at the house this minute working her head off getting it ready for you. She is even going to give you several pieces of her old-fashioned American walnut furniture. But I declare, Ila, you ought to be ashamed to take it after the way you have been acting. It is not an easy task to get a house ready to move into, especially after the former tenant has had to leave in a hurry. I worked over there all day yesterday. I was making curtains for the kitchen when you called me. I thought by the way your voice sounded you were sick."

Ila looked crestfallen. She understood now why her mother had warned her she was likely to prove a poor navigator.

"And you knew all about it, mother?" She was trying to make a last stand.

"Yes. Your father and I went with Bob to look over the premises before he decided to buy. Bob got the deed this afternoon that is, his mother did. She said you nearly caught her when she took it out of the mail box." Mrs. Thurston's voice carried the same tone one uses to a child who has just tried one's patience to the limit. "I told Bob when he insisted upon taking you by surprise, he had better watch out or he might be the one to get surprised. I promised him I would not tell you a word about it. But I have had to in order to keep you from spoiling everything. This reminds me of the tantrums you used to have around Christmas time when you were little. Probably if I had spanked you then you might have been saved. All this now, Modern methods may be all right with children, but our grandmothers certainly did raise some mighty fine children, and they did not do it entirely with talking."

Ila listened to all her mother had to say. The she proceeded to powder her nose. Then she said: "I suppose Bob and his mother will be tired and hungry when they come home. ### A BROKEN NAP

Buster Bear is a queer fellow and a very independent fellow. For the most part he does what he pleases and is big and strong that he fears no one save man; and when there are no men about there is nothing to prevent him doing exactly as he pleases in the Green Forest. So he eats when he feels hungry, and he sleeps when he feels sleepy, and it doesn't make the least bit of difference to him whether it is daylight or dark, for Buster is like Reddy Fox and Billy Mink and Peter Rabbit and a lot of others who can see at night or when jolly down from high up in the blue, blue sky.

On this particular afternoon Buster Bear had chosen to take a nap. He had been up all the night before and he expected to be up all of the morning, so he had chosen to sleep during the day. Now Buster's bed was in the middle of a great windfall, which you know is a pile of trees blown down by the wind. It was deep in the forest where few ever came and Buster had made a very comfortable bed of leaves there. It was just the kind of a place to sleep in undisturbed. So Buster had spent most of the day there sleeping in solid comfort.

Late that afternoon he began to dream. He dreamed that he was being hunted by men with terrible guns, and that he was running for his life. The worst of it was those hunters were following him by means of dogs. He wasn't afraid of dogs themselves, but he was afraid of the hunters, and he knew that the dogs would lead them straight to him, so instead of standing to fight the dogs he was running with all his might. He could hear the voices of the dogs drawing nearer and nearer, and he was just trying to make up his mind whether or not to climb a tree to get away from them when his eyes flew open and there he was safe and sound in his bed in the windfall. It was all a dream.

But was it? Buster blinked fast to make sure that he was awake. He certainly was in his bed in the middle of the windfall. There was no dream about that. But neither was there any dream about that eager "Bow-wow-wow-wow-w!" That was the voice of a real live dog, and it was coming nearer and nearer. Buster scrambled to his feet. Were hunters after him after all? Should he run or should he fight? Sudden anger swept over him and made his little eyes fairly snap. He had caught a glimpse of a little red form making straight for that old windfall, and on its very heels the dog who was making all that noise. In a flash he understood. Bowser the Hound was not after him at all but was chasing Reddy Fox.

A feeling of great relief swept over Buster Bear, and with it a feeling of anger. What did Reddy Fox mean by leading Bowser the Hound there of all places? Was this one of Reddy's sharp tricks? It was bad enough to be waked out of a comfortable nap, but to have a noisy dog led straight to the bedroom was too much, altogether too much. Buster growled, and it was a deep, angry growl terrible to hear. It was at the sound of this that Reddy Fox realized that he had come to the wrong place, and he forgot that he was almost too tired to run another step. It was right then that Bowser the Hound put his tail between his legs, and with the hair along his back standing straight up with fear, turned and ran the way he had come, helping as if he expected something terrible to happen at every jump. In fact, he did. He expected to feel the terrible claws of Buster Bear.

With a still deeper growl Buster jumped out where it was clear and he could see better. Then he began to grin and finally to chuckle. Having got over his own fright Buster was tickled to see the fright of Reddy Fox and still more so to see the way Bowser the Hound was running as if he expected every jump to be his last one.

"I guess," said Buster Bear slowly, "that they won't bother me again very soon." And Buster guessed just right.

People's Pulpit

After having ten reactors to the T. B. test out of a herd of 14, I went to Malcomb's room at Hotel Burlington to see how to get rid of them.

"As the cattle were in good flesh, I told them they had got the cattle by law, but so far as the test was concerned it did not prove anything."

"That's Baker for you. Wouldn't you rather take a chance with the Mayo Brothers than Baker, if you were sick?" was the reply.

The rumor is also being spread here that if it were not for Baker the farmers would not have brought on this compulsory test by the state.

In my opinion that is the same as if these doctors would tell us farmers that have to have someone to tell us how badly we are treated; that left ourselves we don't know how badly we are treated and don't mind it. We just take it and look for more unless someone comes along and tells us that we are not being treated right.

But I for one appreciate the fight Norman Baker has put up for us single handed.

My idea is that what must come will come and what has not come is liable to come, and that is justice to the farmers by fighting their battle and electing their friends and supporters in the next primary election.

Good Health Club

Health Rule No. 1. "BOWEL CONTROL"

Of extreme importance and something that everyone must carefully watch, and that is, daily bowel evacuations. One of the great underlying principles of health is the elimination of wastes from the body.

By a careful selection of food the waste substances of a haphazard diet may be expelled from the body, thus preventing ill-health and ill-looks.

To secure good bowel action a liberal supply of vital foods and green vegetables must be used every day. In no other way may one secure uninterrupted good health.

When one can secure good daily eliminations he may feel that he is on the road to better health.

Accumulated waste matter in the colon, such as unassimilated portions of food and the poison secretions of the metabolism of the body, must be regularly and thoroughly discharged before absorption of these dangerous by-products takes place. The taking of cathartics which must pass through the whole digestive tract before reaching the seat of the trouble is a serious error and one which should not take the place of knowing how to secure natural and frequent action in a normal way. These artificial methods cannot but upset the digestion and increase the faulty condition rather than help it.

It is necessary to learn to control the bowels by food alone and this can be done if the vital, laxative, and muscle foods are properly proportioned as outlined in these articles. In the beginning the bowels may be sluggish for a few days, but the change of diet and the leaving off of artificial laxatives will no doubt derange the old order of things.

There is no question that when the correct quantities of the whole foods are taken the desired results are bound to appear. The quantities of green foods should be increased until the wastes are loosened and the energy derived from the vital or nerve foods will expel the forces.

Baths At least two warm curative baths should be taken by those who are able to get around with ordinary comfort. Begin by using comfortably warm water and then gradually increase the heat as high as can be comfortably maintained. This hot bath as long as you can comfortably even one half hour or longer, providing you do not feel faint and you are not in delicate health. This will bring good circulation to the skin. Do not use cold water to close the pores of the skin. Instead, dry quickly, then walk, rest, recline, eat, as you feel inclined to do.

CAUTION: Those who are not accustomed to taking full warm baths should not make the first one too hot or too long. Sometimes too great heat will cause fainting and sometimes it is well to have the bathroom window open slightly so

LEARN TO KNOW THE RIGHT WORD

By W. C. Nicholson

DON'T SAY "I WOULD LIKE"

(Find the error in this article.)

Yesterday's errors you no doubt found in the letter from your "Inquirer." In the places this correspondent used the expression "I would like." The first "... which I would like to have answered." The second: "I would like to have a chair, etc." These should have been written; which I should like to have answered; I should like to have a chair.

Firstly, let us take up the sentence. "There was but one thorn in his flesh," which was submitted by "Inquirer." This sentence is correct. "But" is an adverb.

"Inquirer" asks for the principal parts of "awake." They are as follows: present, awake; past, awoke or awaked; past participle, awakened. It is correct to say, "I awakened early," used in this manner, is correct, but not so often heard as "awoke," "awaked" or "woke."

"Inquirer" also asks if the latter of the following examples is not more grammatical than the former: I have no experience; I haven't any experience. Either form is correct.

Our correspondent next expresses doubt as to whether to use "in" or "into" in the following sentence: "I should like to have a chair to sit in (into)." The right word is "in."

"Which is the more correct form, whom did you talk with (or to) asks "Inquirer." You may talk to a person who will listen to you. You may talk with some one, and thereby carry on a conversation. The last of "Inquirer's" queries will be answered in the next instalment of "The Right Word."

FOUR NOTRE DAME STARS ALL-AMERICAN PROSPECTS

Jacobs Brings Happy Tidings of Schmeling

Manager Says Champ's Eyes Are Ever So Much Better

By BILL CORUM
(INS) SPORTS WRITER
NEW YORK—(INS)—Joe Jacobs, manager and ambassador extra-ordinary for Max Schmeling, returned to this, his native home, yesterday on the Ile de France. ("Ah, the lights and sounds and the byres of home," said Joe Jacobs as he leaned over the taffrail waving his skimmer at the statue of liberty.)

But to freshen your memory about Max Schmeling: He is the heavyweight champion of the world—in spots.

New York State was not one of the spots, according to the last reading of the minutes. However, it is not best to be too certain of the score. The New York state boxing commission is frequently of a vacillating mind on these matters, and while Herr S. was not the commission's champion yesterday, he may very well be tomorrow. It will depend largely on whom he is going to fight next, for whom and for what.

But there will be time enough to go into that. The Ile de France had an uneven voyage and many of her passengers reported sick. Some of them blamed it on Joe Jacobs' ever-present cigar.

Peggy Blames Cigar
"Ugh, that cigar," said Miss Peggy Hopkins-Joyce, as she waited for her baggage to be checked through the customs, "and that man escorting it reminds me of one of my former husbands."

Pressed to tell which former husband, Miss Joyce said she couldn't remember, which was only natural. They come. They go.

Herr Jacobs has just come from a place in Germany called Bad Sorrow, or about that, and like as not he named it himself on learning that James J. Johnston had been appointed manager of Madison Square Garden.

James J. and Joe Jacobs are not exactly ac-quiesce, as we say in our set.

Jacobs brings happy tidings of his here-and-there champion reporting that he has fully regained his health at Bad Sorrow, or thereabouts. This will be a great relief to the boxing public over here, since when he left us the Herr was suffering such a bad attack of asthenism he couldn't see Primo Carners.

Sharkey Explodes Myth
In the interim, however, Jack Sharkey has pretty thoroughly exploded the myth of Primo's man-eating prowess, and Jacobs feels confident that Max would not now confuse Carners with the empire State building.

"Oh, his eyes are ever so much better, I can tell you," he says. Just before I took my departure from Bad Sorrow, I saw him waving his pictures of Jack Dempsey, and he recognized Jack without the slightest trouble. In fact, when I showed him the very first picture of Dempsey, he smiled, held out his hands and said "dada."

Now that our travel-stained sportsman from the old world has brought it up, it is really remarkable how many of the current crop of heavyweights can see Dempsey without even the aid of a magnifying glass. Judging from what I was reading in the papers yesterday, however, I fear that Bearcat Wright saw him first. What a pity! for who, after all, is Bearcat Wright? (Bearcat Wright, Bearcat Wright. Bearcat and Dempsey couldn't get along.) Phooey!

On Gold Standard
Jacobs did not bring any dachshunds back for the mad wags of the press on this visit. "The depression has affected the dachshunds, too," he explained. "They are now so undersized, due to the condition of the market, that they have no clearance whatever in walking, and I did not wish to bring any of my friends a dog that had to be hoisted over a lead pencil. However, I found, as you might expect, that the dachshund is still on the gold standard."

The return of the prodigal, who incidentally asked for herring instead of fatted calf, reminded me of a condition that hasn't been keeping me awake nights for a long time. How does anybody reasonably expect fellows like Schmeling and Sharkey to be built up into great drawing cards in the prize fight business?

They make one, two at most, fights a year, after which they retire promptly to their ancestral estates. Compare them with Dempsey.

Jack Real Trouper
Even now, in the gloaming of a once-glamorous career, Jack is tramping with the tops, meeting people, making friends, making customers not alone for himself but for boxing as a whole.

Fighters such as Sharkey and Schmeling really have no personal following. Don't misunderstand me. I didn't say friends. They have friends, of course. But say I'm allowing they have big enough to count at the box office is synthetic; built on racial preferences or newspaper publicity.

JOB
Anything that provides employment these days is interesting. Navy's 110 varsity, 50 plebe and 120 class football players are so hard on their suits it keeps two tailors busy throughout the grid season.

An Ohio man has found that moonlight and golf mix all right. Even golf and moonshine have been known to hit it off okay.

IMPORTANT TILTS IN ALL SECTIONS EXCEPT FAR WEST

East Is Particularly Fortunate in Its Grid Cardings

By EDDIE CASEY
Former All-American Halfback and Now Head Football Coach at Harvard University
(Written for and copyrighted, 1931, by INS)

BOSTON—(INS)—Major football games of every sort crowd the gridiron schedule tomorrow, with promising clashes listed in every section except the far west.

The East is particularly fortunate in its gridiron schedulings. Army and Pittsburgh, Holy Cross and Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell, Lafayette and Penn State, Brown and Columbia, New York U. and Fordham, Notre Dame and Navy and Syracuse and Colgate are just a few of the games which will be decided in this section.

The Harvard-Holy Cross game has attracted unusual interest. Harvard is undefeated and Holy Cross is conceded to have an even chance of breaking the Crimson victory string.

Dartmouth is Underdog
Dartmouth probably will be an underdog going into the game with Cornell. I do not think, however, that Cornell will make the mistake of underestimating this Dartmouth team.

Pittsburgh plays Army at Pittsburgh. The Cadets have come along nicely in the last two weeks and will press Pitt all the way. Pittsburgh would seem to have the more power. A small score tie game might tell the story.

Columbia on its past record rates a win over Brown. Pennsylvania looks able to recover from its decisive defeat by Notre Dame and come back to defeat Georgia Tech. Colgate and Syracuse are well matched with Syracuse undefeated. Colgate has the edge.

The Fordham-New York university game is a tossup.

Princeton May Win
Princeton may swing back into the victory path tomorrow, but Fordham and Lee will bother the Tiger.

Two games are outstanding in the south. Georgia and Tulane, undefeated eleven, meet in one of the best games of the season. It is any team's game with Tulane possibly having a slight edge. Tennessee and Vanderbilt are other southern teams which meet in an important game. Tennessee is the choice here.

Three Big Football Games on Broadcast Schedule Saturday

NEW YORK—(INS)—Three big football games will be aired tomorrow. The broadcasts are as follows: 1:30 p. m.—Pitt vs. Army over Columbia. 1:45 p. m.—Notre Dame vs. Navy over NBC. 2:45 p. m.—Georgia vs. Tulane over NBC.

Late Dope on Football Teams

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(INS)—With Clark Root, veteran quarterback, completing the backfield combination, the Illinois varsity went through a final workout today before meeting Chicago.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(INS)—Michigan gridmen took only an easy workout today, preparatory to meeting Michigan State here tomorrow.

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—The Iowa football squad left here today to play Purdue tomorrow after having had only two days of intensive practicing since the Nebraska game. Poor weather conditions were responsible.

MADISON, Wis.—(INS)—The probable loss of Cutbert, regular tackle, dampened Wisconsin's hopes of victory tomorrow over Ohio State when the two teams clash for second place in the Western conference. Cutbert is in the infirmary with a fever.

JANESVILLE, Wis.—(INS)—Ohio State's squad of 44 men were to go through a workout here today before proceeding to Madison tomorrow to meet Wisconsin.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—George Potter, Northwestern's injured quarterback, is scheduled to start against Indiana tomorrow. In a last workout the Big Ten leaders last night engaged in a dummy scrimmage against Hoosier players. Coach Hanley stressed the drill on pass defense.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—(INS)—With only two practice sessions this week behind them, the Notre Dame squad of 36 players was en route to Baltimore today where the Irish will meet the Navy.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Coach A. A. Stagg's troubles were many today. On the eve of Chicago's encounter with Illinois tomorrow six reserve players on the hospital list and in all probability will be unable to play. Keith Parsons, regular center, is the latest hospital case.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(INS)—Fourteen Purdue veterans will make their last gridiron appearance tomorrow when the Boilermakers meet Iowa among those winding up their collegiate football careers are the brilliant backfield composed of Alex Yune, Jim Purvis, Jack White and Dick Risk.

Pop Warner was coach at at Cornell?

Way back when they cut the Friday night burlesque show short to stage the weekly boxing show and the big city police forces put on bike cops who rode at terrific speed through the streets?

Way back when cellars were not social rooms but places to store away a lot of good things to eat through the winter and "Waltz Me Around Again Willie" and the quarterback yelled "signals"?

Way back when there was so much kick in football all eleven men on a team wore shin guards and between halves the players mingled with the crowd and a girl under 150 pounds wore bustles and pads?

John (Jake) Sullivan, Northwestern university sophomore half back who played so well against Minnesota last Saturday that Coach Dick Hanley will nominate him for action in the Indiana game next Saturday.

Friday the 13th Casts Very Little Gloom In Big Ten Camps

Hope Springs Eternal In Hearts of Teams To Do Battle

By WEST PETERSON
(INS) SPORTS WRITER
WASHINGTON

CHICAGO—(INS)—This was Friday the thirteenth, but the fact cast very little gloom into the midwestern football camps preparing to do battle on the morrow. Hope springs eternal in the undergraduate heart, or something to the effect.

Optimism of the most rampant variety was evident around the precincts of Northwestern University. The Wildcats, headed for the title, were given great odds to overrun Indiana in Dwyer stadium. The Purple's only remaining hurdle will be Iowa, one week hence.

Hoosiers Keyed Up
The Hoosiers have been keyed up for the Northwestern game for half the season, and they are descending on Evanston with a vow to stop the Wildcats if it is humanly possible. About 35,000 were expected to see this last scheduled appearance of the Purple team on the home grounds during the current season.

A real football game is in prospect at Madison, Wis., tomorrow, when Ohio State and Wisconsin will fight it out to determine which shall remain in the tie for second place in the Big Ten. The Cards and Buckeyes were considered sufficiently on a par to insure one of the best Ohio contests of the year. However, victory over Navy and the Badgers' flight many over Illinois gave the odds to the visitors. A

Rockne To Be Paid Tribute
Football Fans Will Honor Memory of Famous Coach

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—Football fans throughout the United States tomorrow will pay a tribute to the memory of Knute Rockne, the gridiron wizard of Notre Dame.

Between the halves of games played in one hundred or more cities spectators will rise and bare their heads in memory of the football strategist.

Plans for the observance are sponsored by the National Coaches association.

SOFT
The Ottawa club of the National hockey league has a year's leave of absence from the circuit but keeps its voting powers, will get a share of profits besides $25,000 rental for players farmed out.

BATTLE AT OMAHA IS IMPORTANT IN MISSOURI VALLEY

Creighton Has Chance To Upset Appaleart For Grinnell

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—Grinnell and Creighton's conference game at Omaha is the center of interest in the Missouri Valley conference schedule tomorrow although Drake and Washington are each meeting old traditional rivals in what promise to be terrific struggles.

For should Creighton upset the pioneers' appaleart they will knock the undoubted leader in the race for the conference football championship into the laps of the Drake Bulldogs who stand at the head of the list today with two victories and no defeats as compared to one victory and no defeats for Grinnell and the Oklahoma Aggies.

Then even if Grinnell should win from the Bulldogs one week from tomorrow Drake will gain a tie for the championship.

Grinnell's Attack Strong
But the Pioneers' strong aerial attack which has been halted only once this season, is a powerful offensive weapon which the Bluejays will find difficult to beat.

Drake's game with Iowa State college should go to the Cyclones if past performances of the two seasons are true indicators but the Bulldogs point all season for this contest and will make the going tough for the Big Six leaders.

Kansas Meets Bears
Washington university meets Kansas. Kansas has failed to win a game this year while the Bears have won only a pair of very unimportant early season games, and either of the two teams may gain the victory tomorrow afternoon.

Tulsa university will attempt to repeat its first victory over the valley when it meets the Oklahoma Aggies at Tulsa. The Tulsa eleven downed the Creighton Bluejays earlier this season but will probably find much stiffer competition in the Aggie eleven.

Battle Royal Stated
A battle royal was slated for the Champaign stadium, where Chicago and Illinois will lambast each other to determine which shall be lowest in the cellar. The Illinois were favored to take the measure of Coach Stagg's men, but a good fight was in prospect.

Notre Dame, according to dope, should beat Navy at Baltimore tomorrow. The Irish have demonstrated championship caliber throughout the season, whereas the middies were beaten last week-end by Ohio.

Civil war is on the program at Ann Arbor, where Michigan tomorrow will take on Michigan State. State has shown power throughout the season and may give the Wolverines quite a struggle.

Minnesota takes a "breather" tomorrow with Cornell college. Next week the Michigan-Minnesota contest, with a background of ancient rivalry, will be a feature of the circuit.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia heavyweight, ruled a 7 to 5 favorite today to defeat Paulino Uzcudun. They meet in Madison Square Garden tonight in a ten-round bout.

The odds may be cut before evening, however, as the Basque's aggressive, crouching style was expected to bother Loughran. The Philadelphia may have a more difficult time than he did against Max Baer, Vic Campolo and Ernie Schaaf.

COACH STEFFEN TO RESIGN JOB

Carnegie Tech Mentor Will Quit Position After Last Game

CHICAGO—(INS)—When Carnegie Tech plays its last game of the season on Thanksgiving day, Judge Walter P. Steffen will resign the job of football coach he has held for eighteen years, he said today.

Announcement of his decision was first made last night at the Annual University of Chicago Alumni banquet where the Judge was a speaker.

The Judge explicitly denied a report that he was to succeed Amos Alonzo Stagg as a football coach at the University of Chicago. He intimated he was through with coaching.

COAST "SPLIT" THING OF PAST

Pacific Circuit to Play One Season-Long Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—The split season in the Pacific Coast league probably will be abandoned in 1932. The circuit will play just one season-long schedule with no playoffs.

All this has come about because of the miserable financial fiasco in the 1931 playoffs between San Francisco and Hollywood, the split season winners. The total paid attendance for the four games was $14,635.

The league was compelled to apportion $10,000 to make up to the players the difference in their slice of the playoffs and actual wages for the season.

The leaders plan to apportion $15,000 in 1932 to the players on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th place clubs, and then try to arrange a series with the winner of the "Junior World Series" involving the American Association and the International Leagues.

EXAMPLE
The Toledo club of the American Association offers an example in minor league baseball. In half a dozen years the Hens sold stars to the majors for $400,000 but poor attendance wiped out the surplus and now the business is in the hands of receivers.

Connie Mack won't have to wreck the A's. Gabby Street and his crew did the job very efficiently.

Bill McKeechnie teaches a Sunday School class in the winter and will spend his summer vacation with Art Shires.

Material Scarce and Far Between After Leaving There

By LEO FISCHER
INS Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(INS)—Having combed the Big Ten for possible All-American candidates as a starter from the middle west, one doesn't hesitate very long about where to look next.

It's Notre Dame, where heartily "Hunk" Anderson is carrying on in mighty fashion.

Notre Dame and the conference—notably Northwestern—dominate football this season in the middle west to a greater extent than ever before. Usually there are several strong aggregations but for some reason they're quite conspicuous by their absence this fall.

Four Notre Dame players have attracted particular attention, three of them veterans and the other a newcomer in the lineup. First of all, of course, comes Marchmont Schwartz, the black-haired flash and principal scoring threat this year.

Schwartz Kicker Too
Marchmont has developed a new role in addition to his usual balloting activities. He has taken over the kicking job where Frank Cardico left off, and the great Frank isn't missed much. In addition, Schwartz does a good deal of the Notre Dame passing while his long runs have featured every game.

Joe Kurth, right tackle and Capt. Tommy Yarr, center, are the other two veterans who are going along in great style. Kurth has been handicapped somewhat by illness. Yarr has played most of the season with his left hand in a cast because of an injury sustained in the Indiana contest, but despite this ranks as one of the best defensive centers in this section.

Krause Making Good
It is seldom that a sophomore crashes into a Notre Dame lineup, but Ed Krause, tackle, has landed with both feet. Krause, a former Chicago prep star, made his debut in the Northwestern game, and it was he who blocked the punt late in the pastime that almost won for the Irish. If he doesn't make the grade this year, he will next season, beyond all doubt.

After one leaves South Bend, all-American material is scarce and far between.

The Missouri Valley conference and the Big Six are usually good for a few candidates, but they're hardly up to par this year. One of the outstanding performers is Cronkrite, end of the Kansas Aggies, who is called by Coach Bob McMillan the greatest flankman he ever saw. Ely, Nebraska center; Nagle, tackle of Iowa State; and Thomas, a quarterback at Grinnell, are other Big Six leaders.

Star Material Scarce
Among the independent teams—Marquette, Detroit, Michigan State, etc.—there are no Red Duns or Lloyd Brasils this fall. Monnett, speedy Michigan State halfback, is one of the leading scorers in the middle west, but his ability will be better known after Michigan State clashes with Michigan Saturday.

I. John's Disciples Become Christians (v. 1-7).
 These twelve disciples had only been taught the baptism of repentance as preparation for the Kingdom of Christ; that is, to receive Christ as the one who on the cross provided redemption for them through the shedding of his blood. When they believed and received Christ as their Savior, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, and Paul laid hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit.
II. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

est in literature, but upon the message of salvation through Christ.
 2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10). The Jews, being enemies of the gospel, were only hardened by Paul's preaching, and make openly against this way of salvation in Christ. Paul separated the disciples from them and resorted to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus.
 III. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).
 Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers. That Paul's ministry might be successful here, God in an extraordinary way put his seal upon the work. Handkerchiefs and aprons that had touched Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain Jews who went about the country practicing magical arts undertook to use the name of Jesus in their incantations. Knowing that their connection with Christ was not real, the use of his name by them only enraged the evil spirits who sprang upon and overcame them.
 IV. A Glorious Awakening (vv. 17-41).
 1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits, created impressions favorable to Christianity.
 2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ while not living right lives (v. 18).
 3. Many gave up the practice of the black arts (v. 19). Black arts are forms of jugglery by the use of charms and magical words. No one can have fellowship with God and practice such arts. They proved the genuineness of their Christian profession by publicly burning their books, valued a $12,500.
 4. Upstart of the silversmith at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).
 a. The occasion (vv. 23, 24). The power of the gospel was destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. Their primary interest was its financial effect upon the principle business of the city.
 b. The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that much people had been turned from idolatry and that the market for their wares was materially weakened. He appealed to his fellows.
 (1) On the ground of business (v. 27). The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or way of living.
 (2) On the ground of religious prejudice. He said that the temple of the great Goddess Diana would be despoiled (v. 27). He became religious when he saw that his business was being damaged. His speech gained his end. The crowd in a rage cried, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The mob was quieted by the tact, good judgment, and counsel of the town clerk (vv. 37-41).

ENTERTAINERS AT WLS INSULT IOWA LISTENER

Letter in Reply to Criticism Calls
Man a "Fool"

Although various charges were hurled against Norman Baker which Ellis Yost and the Federal Radio Commission used as an excuse to refuse to grant a license to operate radio station KNTN here, Baker, 55, Tanner, 756-14th Avenue South, Clinton, is wondering what to do regarding a letter he recently received from station WLS of Chicago.

Mr. Tanner, sitting at his radio one day, tuned in station WLS. He heard a team announced as "Mack and Bob" sing a song and they were singing it out of tune. He wrote them a letter about it and received an insulting reply.

Had such a letter been written from radio station KNTN, the author would have been called to account and if the matter was brought to Mr. Baker's attention, an apology would have been offered the listener.

In connection with the closing of radio station KNTN, Mr. Baker recently announced that more than 500 farmers and city people have told him, at his various meetings, that their batteries have run down and they have not even had them recharged since KNTN went off the air. This proves beyond a doubt the loyalty of KNTN listeners.

Following is the letter received by Mr. Tanner. It is copied in the language and spelling of "Mack and Bob."

"My Dear Mr. Tanner:

"Your most laudable letter was received and how glad we are to know that the state of Iowa can produce food like you. Most of the states have institutions for men or your disability and I am sure your state has, but they have just failed to find you yet. I think I shall recommend you to your state crazy house. I would have used the name correctly but, your poor illiterate boy, it might have confused you since you wouldn't know its meaning."

"Well, since you have grown tired of Mack and Bob, I am just wondering if your set has a station selector on it? I am sure it has and all you have to do is turn the little selector either to the right or to the left and get somebody else. In case you are unable to turn the dial, I would suggest that you have some of your dear friends do this for you as it is very dangerous."

"Now, that we are friends, suppose you compose our next melody for us. We would appreciate this as you seem to take such an interest in us and since you are a lover of good music."

"Really, I haven't got time to go on telling you how dumb you are but I am taking the time in order to let you know that Mack and Bob appreciate anything any one has to offer that has brain work behind it, but we don't care to correspond with a fool. If you come to Chicago at any time visit our station we will give you a warm welcome providing you promise me that you won't expose your ignorance. I do not care to hear from you again as with good sense."

"Yours sympathizers,
"Mack and Bob."

S. TOSS BERRY, 56, DIES HERE TODAY

Stephen Toss A. Berry, 1041 Hersey avenue, died at the Baker hospital at 3:37 a. m. today following a lingering illness. He had been a resident of this city for the past 30 years, the most of that time being employed as a button cutter.

Mr. Berry was born in Sedalia, Mo., June 17, 1875, the son of Theodore and Caroline Berkenbile Berry. In 1898 he was married to Dorothea Ann Henning at Concordia, Mo.

Surviving him are his widow, two sons, Virgil "Jack" Berry of Muscatine, Francis of Detroit, two grandchildren, Richard Berry of Chicago and Dorothy of Muscatine, six brothers, Andrew, Hugo, Peter, Chris and William of Muscatine and Marion of Omaha, three sisters, Mrs. Wesley Webb and Mrs. Ruth Austin of Davenport and Mrs. Edna Stebbins of Muscatine.

Collections Made in Month by Treasurer Amounted to $49,116

Total collections at the office of County Treasurer R. A. Van Dyke during the month of October, amounted to $49,116.17, he reported today. Of that sum, $36,692.39 was collected from the various city and county district funds, $539 was collected in automobile license fees, $3,141.56 from the city consolidated fund, and $3,743.22 was collected from the city special fund.

This depression is causing some people to act a bit queer. A hockey player has asked for a reduction in salary. Babe Ruth says he doesn't want a raise—that $80,000 is enough in these times.

Patient Wins Action Against Toronto Hospital for $3,000

Doctors Should Warn
Patient of Danger,
Court Holds

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(Special)—

Because doctors in a Toronto hospital failed to operate properly upon a patient and inform the patient of the gravity and danger of the operation, a Toronto court awarded damages of $3,000. The Vancouver Sun printed the following editorial on the subject:

"A Toronto court has awarded $3,000 damages against a Toronto hospital for injuries incurred by a patient improperly and imprudently operated upon."

"The court held that before doctors perform an operation, it is their duty to inform the patient of the gravity and danger of an operation."

"It is just about time that public protectors were putting the brakes on the medical orgy of grabbing and snatching people from their homes and rushing them off to hospitals for unnecessary operations. Instead of frightening patients as to the danger of death from their alleged ailments, medical doctors should frighten people about the danger of death and injury from operations. Most cases now operated upon can be cured with a little old-time common sense treatment, plus a little modern advice on diet and drainage."

"Instead of small, inexpensive hospitals being run to take care of accidents and fractures and a few cases of surgery, and for the distribution of diet and health information, our hospitals have become big costly business institutions run at public expense as conveniences for unnecessary medical operations."

"Last year the Vancouver General Hospital cost Vancouver citizens a total of over one million dollars. In grants and deficits the government and the Vancouver public were called on for the greater part of this amount."

"An instance of how far our hospitals have become big business institutions for the convenience of medical operators and how far they have gotten away from health and the relief of human suffering can be seen from a case reported to this paper on Tuesday, May 12."

"As reported, a little four-year-old girl got her hand jammed in a motor door; the finger-ends crushed. The child was rushed into the emergency ward of the hospital; the hospital doctor was called. He looked at the crushed fingers, made some inquiries from the parents, and finding that they had a family doctor, insisted that their doctor must do the job."

"To lose the family doctor and get him to the hospital took one hour and a half, and during that time the attention that the suffering little girl received was a mere swabbing of the bleeding fingers by a nurse."

"Imagine the feelings of a tax-paying father and mother having to see their child suffer and submit to such medical humbug."

"What are our hospitals for? Are they run for the relief of suffering? Or are they run for the convenience of an orthodox medical cult that is fifty years behind the times in its knowledge and application of common sense ideas on health?"

"Cannot the medical men themselves see that this gigantic hospital business, for the most part to accommodate unnecessary surgical operations, must stop; that once people submit to these operations, they come out of the hospital as often dead as alive; and that if they do come out alive their bodies have been so shocked and wrecked that life is never again the same?"

"What an outrage most surgical operations are against Nature and Nature's laws, and against natural living! Is this Toronto court decision not a warning to orthodox medicine and its unnecessary operations of the trend of public feeling? Should not our hospitals, maintained as they are by public funds, have a nature doctor or some lay inspector consist with all patients before medical men are allowed to operate on them?"

"Orthodox medicine with its black magic serums and unnecessary surgery today controls legislatures and councils to such an extent that the public is in open rebellion. Even little children in schools are taught the medical mumble jumble of serums and surgery, instead of being taught simple principles of health."

"If what orthodox medicine was selling the public was HEALTH, would that public find it necessary to seek relief from our courts? What medical men and what hospitals have not learned is that the public wants HEALTH and is willing to pay for it. What medical universities and orthodox medicine must do is to first learn how to keep the public healthy. Then doctors should find a selling technique that will put their health information and their medical services across to people at a profit to doctors and a benefit to the public."

E. Lippelgoes Bound Over on Charge of Transporting Liquor

Earl Lippelgoes of Muscatine, arraigned this morning before Justice

H. D. Horst on a charge of transporting intoxicating liquor, waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $500. Falling to secure the bail he was lodged in the county jail.

Lippelgoes was arrested by Jack Pace, deputy sheriff, at 8:30 p. m. Thursday on highway No. 61, three miles east of Muscatine. The car driven by Lippelgoes was in a ditch and the officer says he found a quart of "hooch" in the automobile.

MANY DEFAULT ORDERS SIGNED

Judge W. W. Scott Has Busy Day Thursday
In Court Here

Twenty-two entries, many of which were default decrees, were made by Judge W. C. Scott in district court Thursday. The day proved a busy one for the court, who also impaneled the grand jury for the November term.

In the suit of Sarah E. Eliason and others against Jesse Stephens and others to quiet title to land, the defendant was given judgment against the plaintiff for costs when the plaintiff refused to plead over. On Nov. 4, the defendant's petition to dismiss the action was sustained by the court.

Two Against Aitken
The Missouri Paint and Varnish company obtained a judgment against L. E. Aitken for $235.30, and in another action, a default decree awarding the sum of $175.50 to J. F. Freymuth against Aitken was returned.

Judgment for $588.50 was awarded to A. L. Dill against Fred Lovetinsky in another decree signed by the court.

M. Schiele was given a judgment for $638.60 against Herman C. Otte and others.

Guardianship Orders
Letters of guardianship were issued to David N. Ayres as guardian of Alfred A. Ayres, after Ralph Tipton was appointed as guardian ad litem.

Sarah C. Hickey was appointed by the court as guardian for her son, Harry C. Hickey, and she filed her bond of $4,000. Attorney F. L. Bihmeier was appointed by the court as guardian ad litem. F. A. Martin of Wilton is attorney for the estate.

Skies Clear After Heavy Fog; Weather To Continue Fair

A heavy fog that enveloped the city shortly after sunrise today, continued for several hours and made driving extremely difficult. The fog lifted as the sun became brighter and the skies cleared as an indication of fair weather.

The forecast for Iowa is generally fair tonight and Saturday, except possible showers in the southwest portion. The forecast for shippers is as follows: northwest portion, 42; northeast, 40; southwest, 45; southeast, 48.

NOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(Special)—Resolutions directed at radio broadcasting and motion pictures were adopted at the annual meeting of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers held here. The resolutions 30 of which were submitted, were adopted without opposition, and after criticism by the speakers during its four-day meeting.

The radio resolution asserted the belief that broadcasting is an extension of the home, and favored public ownership and operation of broadcasting channels and facilities, and elimination of advertising from programs.

Probably the worst mistake a man can make is to correct the mistakes of his friends.

Minimum temperature was 32 at Charles City and Des Moines.

The local temperature at 7 a. m. today was 40 degrees, a drop of 4 degrees in the past 24 hours. The wind here had shifted from the west to the south. The river stage remained at 2 feet.

Three Vitamins—A, B & C
Nowadays children scarcely are started on the three R's before they've learned that the A, B, C's are vitamins found in bananas! It's this trio, remember, that is so largely responsible for normal growth, healthy bodies, and the development of good, sound teeth.

Proper ripening adds much to the flavor and food value of bananas. Our bananas are ripened by our own modern equipment which assures you of QUALITY.
